~ POLISH TRADITION AROUND EASTER TIME~

EASTER PALM

Traditionally, Palm Sunday ends the period of Lent and begins the Holy Week of the passion and death of Christ until the glorious Resurrections. It is a celebration to commemorate the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem. In Poland, the tradition of blessing Easter palms dates back to the XI century. The most important church celebration of Palm Sunday is the procession with palms. In Poland, willow branches are often used to make Easter palms. It was believed that willow branches blessed on Palm Sunday ensure good health, wealth, and happiness.

EGG PAINTING - "PISANKI"

On the Saturday before Easter Sunday, Poles paint hard-boiled eggs (called pisanki). Some use store-brought kits, which make the coloring and decorating easier. Others continue to color eggs the traditional way – with boiled onion skins. Painting with liquid wax is another traditional way of decorating Easter eggs. Wax creates a barrier that prevents the dye from coloring the protected areas of the eggshell. The egg is then dipped into different dye colors until the desired design is achieved. When the wax is melted off by gently heating the egg over a candle or in warm water, a beautiful, colorful, and intricate pattern is revealed.

BLESSING OF EASTER FOOD BASKET - "ŚWIĘCONKA"

This is one of the most enduring and beloved Polish Easter traditions. Baskets containing a sampling of Easter foods are brought to church to be blessed on Holy Saturday. The basket is traditionally lined with a white linen and decorated with sprigs of boxwood (bukszpan). Observing the creativity of other parishioners is one of the special joys of the event.

EASTER MONDAY - "ŚMIGUS-DYNGUS"

Also known as "Wet Monday", is a tradition which, in short, involves people throwing copious amounts of water at each other. (Water being a symbol of life and renewal). On Easter Monday, boys in the countryside would be allowed to drench girls with water and smack them with branches of pussy willow. Although it sounds terrible, it was usually meant as a way to show their affection (and likely resulted in some marriages later on).
